

67Minutes Mandela Day 2014 was one we can be very proud of. Last year our challenge was to collect 67 packs of nappies, for the 67 minutes of "giving back" on Mandela Day. Since last year we have not needed to buy one pack of nappies for our babies. This year we decided to stock our baby toiletry cupboard. The challenge was to drop off 67 baby toiletry items on Mandela Day, 18 July 2014. Once again our target was exceeded, with us collecting just over 67 baby toiletry items. Well done to all that got involved, far and wide. Let's see what challenge 2015 brings.

Garden Equipment is still needed for the upkeep of the Home's garden. Please contact Leentjie if you are able to donate: leentjie@nthandohome.co.za.

Who's in the Home? Our three little princesses have moved to a more permanent home, and we have been told that they have settled in beautifully and are adapting well to their new surroundings. Our brother and sister duo are growing in leaps and bounds, and developing their little personalities. Fathy celebrated his 3rd birthday with us this month. Happy Birthday big boy, we are so proud of you!

MySchool, is an incredible way for us to raise funds for the running of Nthando Home. This month we raised R508.92 from this initiative. Although we receive continuous support from you, we need to simultaneously build our support base. So keep on shopping and tell ALL family, friends and colleagues to join the cause.

Prayer items

Prayer for our brother and sister duo as they await final placement. For our staff, their health, and for the kiddies health through this last winter month. And for wisdom, guidance and decerment for our management team.
